The one thing that is constant is change. And so does the internet keep changing in scale, scope and importance.

I recently watched "The Mitchel Vs. The Machines" and it was marvelling to see the humorous animation raising the conversation around AI and Data Privacy and Protection.

This got me thinking of the presentation by Paul Muchene on the Evolution of the internet during the KeSIG cohort 2022 training. The rise of AI and Robotics was one of the points raised as a possible outcome in the future and he went ahead to point out the need for human intervention.

It became clear to me that this human intervention can be achieved through a rational and inclusive regulatory framework of AI applications, that is capable of balancing the drive for innovation with ethical practices.

Currently, data is a strategic asset and our lives are now centered on data. The animation pointed out the invasion of privacy, the ethics of taking people's data without their knowledge or permission and this echoed why data protection laws are now important, as raised by Grace Mutung'u in her presentation on Data Protection in Kenya.

This animation provided a serious entry point to internet governance and policy-making. I wouldn't have been able to relate to the animation on this level had I not undertaken the enlightening course on Internet Governance offered Kenya School of Internet Governance together with KICTANet.

It was an amazing journey of learning and growing and I am glad to have graduated and achieved this milestone.

Thank you to Grace Githaiga , Rosemary Koech-Kimwatu , Barrack Otieno , Judy Okite , Kelvin Kariuki , John Walubengo, CISA, CDPSE, (OGW) and the rest of the KICTANet and KeSIG team for the chance to be a part of the KeSIG Fellowship Cohort of 2022.

It has been an incredible, knowledgeable and very informative week!

First I got to Graduate as a KeSIG Fellow during the 2022 Kenya Internet Governance Forum on 30th #KeIGF2022. I got to learn so much at the Kenya School of Internet Governance #KeSIG2022 All Thanks to KICTANet .

Areas covered included;

- Internet governance, its concepts, processes and how to get involved.
- Kenya's internet Governance policy /legal framework(s) eg: the Data Protection Act 2019, Data Protection General Regulations 2021 and Data Protection (Compliance & Enforcement) Regulations 2021.
- Internet Governance Issues in Kenya as well as Digitization and digital rights in Kenya and Africa at large.

I was also fortunate to participate in the forum engagements leading to the 2022 Kenya Internet Governance Forum.

Day:

1: Round-table for Privacy and Data Protection For Women.

- Launch of Policy Brief of Data Protection and Privacy in Kenya from a Gender Perspective which included great panelists such as Mwenda Tevin (Data Protection Advisor) at Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit \(GIZ\) GmbH , Dr. Ololade Shyllon (Head of Privacy Policy Africa, Middle East & Turkey) Meta , Victor Ndede Amnesty International Kenya, Riva Jalipa (Tax Justice Strategieist Oxfam), @Nerima Wahu (Exec. Siasa Place) and lastly Prof. Sylvia Kang'ara who presented the key Findings and Recommendations from the Policy Brief aimed at enhancing women's online participation and overcoming the biases that hinder optimal experiences, participation and cause harm. All thanks to the Agenda Setters and Panelist Elizabeth Orembo Angela Minayo KICTANet and most of all Grace Githaiga KICTANet for making these engagements possible.

This week I got a chance to be part of the Kenya Internet Governance Forum, #KIGF organized by KICTANet . It was an eventful week that started with me learning the unique privacy challenges that women face when navigating the internet through Angela Minayo's insightful project on women and privacy.

On Tuesday, I got to interact with officials from Meta and raised some of the critical concerns I had about how Meta/Facebook handles people's data. I was honored by the fact that Sarah Muyonga, who serves as Meta's Public Policy Manager for East Africa took the time to personally respond to some of my concerns on psychographic profiling/personality profiling and targeted ads marketing. Although we did not completely agree she greatly clarified on the steps and interventions Meta takes to safeguard its user's privacy and was open to hearing my future questions and concerns.

In addition to that, I had an insightful conversation with Mugambi Laibuta on how regulators handle personal data concerns and the challenges of having concerted efforts in handling data privacy concerns in the global south. As usual, his view was enriched with time-tested wisdom and understanding.

I finished the week with an enriching conversation with Adam Lane of Huawei who shared with me some deep insights on geopolitical hoops and challenges Huawei faces, their experiences in the African market, and how to grow a successful start-up in Kenya.

Not to mention the interesting side chatter with Mwenda Tevin and experiencing the wonderful moderation, planning, and convening power of Grace Githaiga Mwendwa Kivuva and Victor Kapiyo

It is also the week I graduated as a Kenya School of Internet Governance Fellow 2022, ready to champion the course of digital rights in Kenya and beyond!

Thank you KICTANet for the wonderful experience!

Have you ever been in a space where everything that excites you is being discussed? Talk of Data Protection, Privacy Rights, Online Gender Based Violence, Cybersecurity and the best practices to be adhered to.

I have been in an amazingly beautiful space for the last 4 days. I happen to be part of the team that tested the Pre-Beta version of Module 5 of the Digital Enquirer Kit on Online Gender Based Violence. We all deserve a safe Digital Space 😊.
